

HOSPITAL DIRECTOR HOSPITAL ADMINISTRATOR

Cornell University Veterinary Specialists (CUVS) is seeking a Hospital Director. The Hospital Director (HD) is a mission-critical senior leadership position. Reporting directly to the President, the HD is responsible for the overall operational, administrative and non-medical management of the hospital and is actively involved in overall CUVS strategy, providing consultation to the President and guidance to other Directors. The HD has responsibility for the fiscal performance of the hospital, supervises and mentors managers and, together with the President and Chief Medical Officer, owns the maintenance of a positive, engaged and high performing culture.

The HD works collaboratively and supportively within CUVS Leadership, including the veterinarians, to support the primary goal of outstanding medical care. The HD is expected to model an “owner” mentality by being present and accessible, by demonstrating a willingness to assist all employees in making the hospital a success, and by investing the necessary time and effort to accomplish his/her duties, ensure smooth and effective hospital operations, and ensure that CUVS delivers on its missions. It is the goal that this position evolves into the Chief Operating Officer position, with reporting relationships with the Board of Directors and College leadership.
